Only Bridge

You've always put a torch to each and every bridge you've cross ed With each and everyone a little more was lost I hope you take enough memories to keep you when you're gone The only bridge you haven't burned is the one you're standing o n

You might be by yourself out there till God knows when For you, I know there'll be no crossing back again If you ever learn, by then you'll already be alone The only bridge you haven't burned is the one you're standing o n

There's a golden rule but somehow you failed to learn it You find a bridge to cross and then you burnt it The saddest part is that you were only doing yourself wrong The only bridge you haven't burned is the one you're standing o n

The saddest part is that you were only doing yourself wrong The only bridge you haven't burned is the one you're standing o n The only bridge you haven't burned is the one you're standing o n