

Everyday People

Reba McEntire

College Kids turning twenty-one and their senior year spring break was here they headed south but not for sun On their skin where the storms had been
It was hard fixing windows and shingles and doors and the tide never felt so good before

R: Everyday People are the ones who are making miracles and it's beautiful
Everyday People lifting up the world
like an answered prayer
I thank God their there
They're the one's who care
Everyday People

Doctor said "Good News we caught it soon enough, we can clear t his up"
But she's 30 and single with two kids to raise times are tough these days So her friends made some calls and the word spread around How her bills got paid she don't know how

R:

A little girl takes her Mama's hand and walks inside saying "Please don't cry"
As the people who built this house just for them Laugh through the tears as a family moves in Everyday People are the ones who are making miracles

and it's beautiful
Everyday People lifting up the world
like an answered prayer
I thank God their there
They're the one's who care
Everyday people, everyday people, everyday people
