Maggie Creek Road

Reba McEntire

Mama stood on the front porch wringing her hands Watched the tail lights fading on his black Trans Am With her precious little baby taking off inside Staring at him with stars in her eyes

She tried to tell her, but the girl might as well have been deaf She wasn't gonna listen to a word she said

Don't go down Maggie Creek Road With a boy looking like that He'll tell you things that you wanna hear And there'll be no turning back

There's an oak tree down by the lake In the shade where the wild flowers grow What'll happen, only heaven knows So don't go down Maggie Creek Road

It was a still black night, as dark as cold Nobody heard her when she said "no" She kicked and screamed and got free somehow Tore her dress on the door when he pushed her out

She walked 13 miles on the gravel road With tears in her eyes 20 years ago

Don't go down Maggie Creek Road With a boy looking like that He'll tell you things that you wanna hear And there'll be no turning back

There's an oak tree down by the lake In the shade where the wild flowers grow What'll happen, only heaven knows So don't go down Maggie Creek Road

Somehow mama's always known
'Cause they shoulda been home an hour ago
When she pulled up, it was just going down
She turned her headlights off, didn't make a sound

She heard her baby cry "no," but he wouldn't stop Her heart went cold, and her blood ran hot With a pistol in her hand, she opened his door You don't wanna see mama go to war

Don't go down Maggie Creek Road With a boy looking like that He'll tell you things that you wanna hear And there'll be no turning back

There's an oak tree down by the lake
In the shade where the wild flowers grow
What'll happen, only heaven knows
So don't go down
I said, don't go down Maggie Creek Road

Oh, don't go down Maggie Creek Road Oh, don't go down Maggie Creek Road Maggie Creek Road
