

Forgive

Rebecca Lynn Howard

I always said that'd be it
That I wouldn't stick around if it ever came to this
Here I am, so confused
How am I supposed to leave when I can't even move?

In the time it would have took to say
"Honey I'm home, how was your day?"
You dropped the bomb right where we live
And just expect me to forgive

Well that's a mighty big word for such a small man
And I'm not sure I can
'Cause I don't even know now who I am
It's too soon for me to say forgive

I should ask but I won't
Was it love or just her touch?
'Cause I don't think I wanna know
So get you some things and get out
Don't call me for a day or two so I can sort this out

Well you might as well have ripped the life
Right out of me, right here tonight
And through the fallin' tears you said
"Can you ever just forgive?"

Well that's a mighty big word for such a small man
And I'm not sure I can
'Cause I don't even know now who I am
It's too soon for me to say, forgive

You know what they say
Forgive and forget
Relive and regret

Well that's a mighty big word for such a small man
And I'm not sure I can
'Cause I don't even know now who I am
It's too soon for me to say forgive
Oh, it's too soon for me to say forgive
