

Wop-a-din-din

Red House Painters

She's got big green eyes
And a long Egyptian face
She moves across the floor
At her own pace

When I'm here in bed
She'll jump up on my chest
And when we lock eyes
There's so much love, I wanna cry

She comes in near
When I scratch under her ear
And she lifts her head
When I kiss around her neck

Won't go to sleep
When she falls along my side
And two green eyes fade
To a porcelain marble white

And somehow when I sleep
She'll end up at my feet
And if I roll and kick her out
I might knock her to the ground
But she'll come back anyhow

Ella es muy vital
Más triste que salir el sol
Pura como el agua

The morning comes
She squints up to shield out the sun
And she'll go and lay
In the warmest dusty rays

And I hold her face
She lays perfectly in place
And she'll yawn and stretch
And stare me down expressionless
And lay back down into her nest

And if someone calls
She'll race me out the hall
When she hears the phone
Then she knows I'm leaving home
She don't wanna be alone

And I know it's wrong
That I'm going away so long
And for her it's rough
I can't be with her enough
But I'll never give her wrong

Ella es muy vital
Más triste que salir el sol

And somehow when I sleep
