

Dying

Regine Velasquez

I'm dying, dying to wake up without you, without you in my head again

I'm dying, dying to forget about you, that you ever lived There's a shade come over this heart that's coping with laying down to rest

I'm dying to live without you again

I'm dying, dying to find a distraction, get you away from me
I'm dying, dying to reach a conclusion, so that the world can see

It's the same old story of love and glory that broke before it bent

I'm dying to live without you again

The first time you left I said goodbye
Now there's not a prayer that can survive

Dying, dying to die just to come back so we can meet again
Dying, dying to say what I always, always should have said
It's a strange emotion this but there's still hope in this
As long as there's a breath

I'm dying and I can't live without you again

It's a strange emotion this but there's still hope in this
As long as there's a breath

I'm dying and I can't live without you
I'm dying and I can't live without you again