

You know I'll always remember the moment it happened
It seems like it's just a second ago
You know I never thought that I would find myself here
Surrounded by noises and busyness
And other people creating stress,
I looked at you and everything seemed silent and clear
Letting go of my fears

Up above the stressful reality
You kept me floating, holding on to me
I never planned on holding back or
Letting these feelings slip thru the cracks
Like when you speak to me without talking
And take me away from here with out walking
And getting caught in your eyes so,

I'm giving up on solidarity
After telling myself that's what I wanted to be
I guess it took this long to see
It seems so simple, you and me
Kinda like a confession to myself
I think about you more than anybody fucking else
I guess it took this long to see
It seems so simple, you and me

You can't build something from nothing
There's gotta be a spark, some light to be caught
And sometimes the focus is off
And the f-stop is wrong and it takes way too long.

You put me at ease when I'm frustrated and Make me feel new when I thought I was jaded
And YSC is what you say to me