

Perfect Memory

Remy Zero

Remember how they always seemed to know
We had the forest in our eyes
But the earth was in our clothes
And they thought we'd fall
Not at all

So look back on the treasured days
We were young in a world that was so tired
Though it's not what we wanted before
Even the saints had to crawl from the floor

Summers when the money
Was gone you'd sing
All you're little songs
That meant every thing to me

And I'll remember you
And the things that we used to do
And the things that we used to say
I'll remember you that way

Remember how they tried to hold you down
And we climbed those towers
And looked down upon our town
And everything you hoped would last
But just always becomes your past it hurts

Summers when the money
Was gone you'd sing
All your little songs
That meant everything to me

And I'll remember you
And the things that we used to do
And the things that we used to say
I'll remember you always

But then this world slipped through my fingers
And even the sun seemed tired, I still cared
As I lowered you down my heart just jaded
In that moment the earth made no sound

But you were there
You helped me lift
My pain into the air

...
Come home

And I'll remember you
And the things that we used to do
And the things that we used to say

If it don't hurt you, it wont hurt me
It don't hurt me, then it wont hurt you
If it don't hurt you, it wont hurt me I know
