Closer Than Yesterday

Renaissance

As morning leaves the night Opening my eyes I feel that you are close to me And yet your heart is time away But I can't hold a dream That sleeps within my yesterdays And so coming very close now I see my destiny Is to make you part of me And to hope that you might be Pure and free

Leave memories on the wind To spend moments in endless flight Held over by all you mean I feel you nearer the darkest night Closer now, than yesterday

Hoping for a chance To find you loving me In the distance searching there I'll be In time you may come to me To fall into the world That once we left so far behind To learn with each passing moment As tomorrow comes for me In the shadow of my life For eternity to find The light I see