

Kiss Me Once

Rex Goudie

Kiss me once for good luck and twice to let me go* Hide your tears when you walk away so I'll never have to know

I never know, looking in your eyes, to my surprise You're letting go, tried to hide it, just can't fight it Growing cold, is it time to go?
Driving home, radio's playing our favorite song
But you're on the phone, won't you look in my direction You still ignore my heartache, can I be your saving grace?
Am I doing you a favor by giving you some space?

Kiss me once for good luck and twice to let me go Hide your tears when you walk away so I'll never have
to know
If my head don't hear you say it, my heart won't take the blow
So kiss me once for good luck, oh oh, and twice to let me go

Alibis when you're stuck in traffic, late for work Or lost track of time, trying not to worry, how can't I worry?
Lying eyes, is it another guy?
I should have seen this coming, am I easily replaced?
I guess a favors not a favor when it slaps me in the face

Kiss me once for good luck and twice to let me go Hide your tears when you walk away so I'll never have
to know
If my head don't hear you say it, my heart won't take
the blow
So kiss me once for good luck, oh oh, and twice to let me go

No one ever said I was that stupid
No one ever said you were that sly You're the one who's making us go through this So I'm telling you goodbye

Kiss me once for good luck and twice to let me go Hide your tears when you walk away so I'll never have
to know
If my head don't hear you say it, my heart won't take
the blow
So kiss me once for good luck, oh oh, and twice to let me go
Twice to let me go

Kiss me once for good luck so I'll never have to know Kiss me once for good lock, oh oh, and twice to let me go
