In Your Loneliness

Rhonda Vincent

You try and you try But each day goes by And each night still finds you Thinking of the love we knew

You smile and pretend That we'll just be friends But each night still finds you In your loneliness

In your loneliness Do you miss my kiss Need my arms to hold you tight From your easy chair No one seems to care Not so easy there tonight

So I live and I learn That bridges I burn Just come back to haunt me And I close my eyes and see

That the pain that you feel We both share until Your own heart sets you free In your loneliness

So I live and I learn That bridges I burn Just come back to haunt me In your loneliness