

Save Me

Richard Marx

My head is tired
In need of consolation
I've lost sight
Of the destination
I took my hands off the wheel
I swear, for just a moment
But I really don't remember

I'm frozen to the bone
I'm drowning all alone
The water's taken over
I used to have the touch
But now I've lost the feeling
And only you can save me
Only you can save me

My heart is torn
Patched up like an old rag doll
And I can feel
Barely anything at all
I can't go back, I can't go on Can't hide behind the in-between
I'm at the bottom and still falling

I'm frozen to the bone
I'm drowning all alone
The water's taken over
I used to have the touch
But now I've lost the feeling
And only you can save me
Only you can save me
