I Was Educated By Myself

Richie Havens

I can't buy the lie and it don't matter

Even though I try to keep my health

It all seems the same, such a silly game

Played by silly fools who don't even follow their own rules

But oh, when the sunshine follows me around Lifts my feet and takes me from the ground High enough to see the shelf And know that I was educated by myself

I have seen the streets groaning, not battered Though amongst us all, we kept our wealth And though the rain goes pitter-patter, It don't change the pain that we all felt

But oh, when the sunshine follows us around Lifts our feet and takes us from the ground, High enough for us to tell That we were educated by ourselves

It's a simple dream, a common pattern
A universal scheme for us to sell
And though it's a long, long way between Mars and Saturn,
But right here on Earth, we know so well
That all we need is sunshine on the ground
And smiles and smiles and smiles from frown to frown
Just enough for us to yell
That we were educated by ourselves
