Hold On To Your Dream

Rick Springfield

You always felt you had a destiny, yeah You wouldn't bow down to the gods Of money and power, baby You burned bright to shed your light All over the world You had a plan and it was just a matter of time now Here today, what happened to that dream Don't tell me it's over I still smell the fire

Stand up and hold on to your dream Maybe this is your moment Stand up and hold on to your dream You know no one can take it There is a path it's always been yours And you have the right of passage Signed in blood and sealed in tears Sending you a message Across the miles and thru the years Stand up (and be there) and hold on to your dream With some faith and conviction (some faith and conviction)

Take a good look, you don't like what you see, no You just don't come this far And never get scarred, baby It all seemed like fate The big dreams weren't hard to make Way back then Something pure about that Suffer for art, passion and pain Standing here What happened to those dreams Don't tell me they're over While your heart is still beating

Stand up and hold on to your dream Maybe this is your moment Stand up and hold on to your dream You know no one can take it There is a path it's always been yours And you have the right of passage Signed in blood and sealed in tears Sending you a message Across the miles and thru the years Stand up (and be there) and hold on to your dream With some faith and conviction (some faith and conviction)