The One In The Middle

Sometimes at night When I close my eyes I see three women All standing in a line

The one on the left She took my heart The one on the right Said she wanted to be free

But the one in the middle I still love her and I wonder Does she ever think of me?

In my mind I've been to a thousand places When I walk down the street I stare into a thousand faces

The flame of love Once shined so brightly Now it's just A slow burning memory

But the one in the middle I still love her, oh, and I wonder Does she ever think of me?

Maybe, she wouldn't even care No, that's okay It's all in a dream It's all in a dream, anyway

But the one in the middle Oh, I still love her and I wonder Does she ever think of me?

But the one in the middle Oh, I still love her and I wonder Does she ever think of me?

Robert Cray