Maggie Turns To Flies

Robert Pollard

Turning numbers low and high The accountant and his wife Hunger for their prize

In the slumber of the night Wrap around a sheet of fallen sky Gone from countless calculator eyes

You might wonder someday You will go under one day When the eagle flies

Lies won't change a friend so wise Tradewinds blow where maggots turn to flies What a better life!