

How Old Are You

Robin Gibb

Driving my car, we stop for awhile.
It's getting so late and you're sending me wild.
I know that it's madness but oh,
I'm scared, oh so scared.

Taking my hand, try to settle down.
We won't say a word till it's over.
And your eyes are so inviting.
I know that if we stay
I'll never take you home.

You said you were 17
But you are somewhere in between,
That leads me on.
How old are you, oh.

Ran away to open arms.
You're just a girl with women's charms.
That turns me on.
How old are you, oh.

You've been busy lying.
You've made it up to now.
I'm caught up in the heat of the moment.
If you love me and then leave me,
It's the story of my life.
And I won't be in the morning the man I am tonight

So, little girl, please try and understand
You mean more to me than a one-night stand.
I'm losing all resistance, my head has lost control.
It's wrong, oh so wrong.

Deep in the night, shadows all around,
Lost in the magic forever.
And I know that when you touch me
My heart won't let me down.
I'm scared, oh so scared.

You said you were 17
But you are somewhere in between,
That leads me on.
How old are you, oh.

Ran away to open arms.
You're just a girl with women's charms
That turns me on. How old are you, oh.

Fighting all temptation,
I've made it up to now.
I'm caught up in the heat of the moment.
If you love me and then leave me,
It's the story of my life.
And I won't be in the morning the man I am tonight.

You said you were 17
But you are somewhere in between,

That leads me on.
How old are you, oh.

Ran away to open arms.
You're just a girl with women's charms
That turns me on.
How old are you, oh.
