

Hideaway

Rock Kills Kid

Because you say, don't mean you mean it
Run away to find a home
Happy now but you don't see it
Run away because you're all alone

And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have been
And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have been

Dead inside, you wait for something
Innocence lost so long ago
No one cares so why should you?
Run away because you're all alone

And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have been
And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have

Because you say, don't mean you mean it
Run away to find a home
Now I'll let you in, yeah, I'll let you in, yeah

And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have been
And you'll never know what could have been
And you'll never see what might have been

And you'll never know
And you'll never know