She's Crazy For Leaving

Rodney Crowell

Well the bus pulled away In a roaring black cloud Well I stood in the road And Honey I hollered right out loud

Hey darling I love ya. Hey bus driver woe! But you can't stop a women when she's out of control. She's crazy for leaving!

I told her so! And the boys at the bus stop just said "man, let her go!" She's crazy for leaving. I told her so!

But you can't stop a women when she's out of control So I punched out my truck on a telephone pole! No. she never looked back she just said "go driver go!" Well I know I could a caught her

But I ran outta luck! She was long on to Lufkin by the time they cut me out of my tru ck She's crazy for leaving. I told her so!

And the boys at the bus stop just said "man, let her go!" She's crazy for leaving I told her so. But you can't stop a women when she's out of control. So I kicked and I cussed that old East Texas road

I throw'd rocks at my truck, which had busted my nose Ya add insult to injury and what do ya get? Ya get a bus stop of honkies that don't ever forget! She's crazy for leaving I told her so.

And the bus depot lady just said "Hun, just let her go!" She's crazy for leaving I told her so! But you can't stop a women when she's out of control. No, you can't stop a women when she's out of control.

Ya know, she's probably already to Little Rock.
