

I Can't Help Myself

Ronnie Dunn

This was wrong right from the start
Nothin' more than a one way ticket to a broken heart
Lock me up, throw away the key
No matter how you see it, this just can't be

Well, I know that you belong to someone else
And I try, but I can't help myself

I can see the dark clouds building, building up ahead
The devil singin' like a chorus of angels, messin' with my head
With all my strength, all my power, I fight the fight
As much as it feels good to us, it's just not right

Well, I know that you belong to someone else
I try, but I can't help myself

Well, I know that you belong to someone else
I try, but I can't help myself