Inside

Ronnie Milsap

She tries for the honesty but the truth just gets in the way 'Cause I know inside what she can't bring herself to say There's something dying deep in her heart I feel it when I touch her hand So I tell her a lie when I tell her I understand.

But inside I die a little each day
Inside I feel her slipping away
Inside if she knew that I hurt this way
Inside she'd find a reason to stay
And so I must keep this broken heart down deep inside.

She turns to look at me trying to speak her mind A thousand reasons in search of a single rhyme And suddenly it occurs to me she's trying to say goodbye So I give her a smile and tell her that I'll be alright. Ooooh

But inside I die a little each day
Inside I feel her slipping away
Inside if she knew that I hurt this way
Inside she'd find a reason to stay
And so I must keep this broken heart down deep inside.

Sometimes love will slip away it's hard to say just why Is it something that's said or is it in-stead Something that just simply died key change.

But inside I die a little each day
Inside I feel her slipping away
Inside if she knew that I hurt this way
Inside she'd find a reason to stay
And so I must keep this broken heart down deep inside.

Inside

Inside if she knew that I hurt this way
Inside she'd find a reason to stay
And so I must keep this broken heart down deep inside.

Oooooh, inside, inside...
