

Poison Like Your Own

Rookie of the Year

For a minute there I thought you were worth my time.
Now the introductions over,
There's something on my mind.
And now is the perfect time.
Lights out to sleep you go.
This poison's like your own.

Will you think about the things you did wrong?
And by the way where'd everybody go?
And I sat it up and you sat it down
and now it won't be long.

I'm drowning for your love.
Was this a mistake?
Oh my god was this a mistake?
Would I do it all again?
I'm drowning for your love.

I'm stranded and waiting for your touch.
Would I do it all again?

There's a car, by the bridge where nobody goes.
Keep on laughing with every blow.
Is it wrong to be so evil with so much joy?
Keep on laughing with every blow.
And these screams keep on bringing me out of my sleep.
That's what she said when she hit her final blow.

She lied! She didn't live at all.
A question with no answer and now it is resolved.
Would I do it all again for her dead body?
