

How Your Halo Fell

Roper

You wake up in the morning you punch the clock before you ever rub your eyes and all the breath you're taking in is spent up on some distant longing sigh Remember when we traded in our dreams for drabbest gray for dresses and these stupid suits and ties?
I know that you've had enough
I know that we've both grown up But something sweet inside of you has died

[Chorus:]

I know how your halo fell
I saw you bid your heart farewell You sealed your lips, you thought that you would never tell but I know how your halo fell

Down...town, is miserable, blocking out these periwinkle skies and somewhere in the midst of this you bite your lip and say your sad goodbyes
I am not the best with words
I wish I had a better speech I know that there's all the reason in the world for you to hate me

Corazon, This Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ
It tells you that he loves you more than thirst compels us all to ever wet our lips if you could only hear...Listen
