

You And Me Both

Roses Are Red

So take the long way back home tonight. Don't say a thing. Stereo seventeen, red and green. And everything I'm thinking is surfacing. Night brings all the daydreams I can't share with you, my dear. I'll stay awake just to know you're still here. I can't sleep, your face turned from me. I picture flashing lights above me. I'm lost in your silhouette. I see you standing in the window. In the window looking west. Tell me a thousand stories.

Say anything. To see you in a magazine, a movie screen is everything you dream and it's happening. Night brings all the daydreams I can't share with you; my dear. I'll stay awake just to know you're still here. Your hands are on the back of my neck again. Your eyes are in the air. I will stay wide awake again tonight to know you're still here.