

Two Worlds Collide

Rosie Thomas

I cried on my birthday
Was broken to pieces
And everyone noticed
So I made up some reasons
And just when I thought I had more to bring
Well, you tell me you want different things
And I don't believe you
Or I didn't want to

And it's unfair
When two worlds collide
One goes for broke
One walks the line
Yeah, it seems so unfair
To wait your whole life
For someone to finally take a stand for you
And you're still waiting in line

Now I can't hear music
And I can't take train rides
And I can't remember
The last time I felt right

And I want the movies
And I want the love songs
And I want forgiveness
Yeah I want to move on

And it's unfair
When two worlds collide
I meant what I said
And you barely tried
Yeah it seems so unfair
To wait your whole life
For someone to finally take a chance on you
And your still waiting in line

Well I know, (I know, I know) I gotta let go. (I gotta, I gotta
)
Well I know, (I know, I know) I gotta let go. (I've got to let you go)
Yeah I know, (I know, I know) I gotta let go