Have you ever had the feeling You take it all for granted You wake up every morning And expect to rise Have you ever had a moment To look into the mirror To find a person Who won't open her eyes Have you ever felt a presence (Or is it all in the past, dear?) So mesmerizing It chills you to the bone Have you ever been in love And overcome that first fear Well, then you know No one makes it on her own

Did you ever catch a sunset Right across the ocean The universe revealed And it didn't make sense at all When you came into my world Causing quite a commotion I could have sworn I've met you Many times before Cos there's something in your eyes That links us together Something 'bout your face your lips Your smile looks so alone Have you ever been in love And thought it'd last forever Well, then you know No one makes it on her own

Hey, there's something in your eyes
That links us together
Something 'bout your face your lips
Your smile looks so alone
Have you ever been in love
And thought it'd last forever
Then you know
No one makes it on her own

Nobody makes it on her own Nobody makes it Nobody makes it on her own No one makes it on her own