I've Never Seen...

You know they say In every man's life, there comes a time When you get struck by the arrow of cupid By the love of God, or the beauty of a woman Sometimes this love, brings thunder into your life And it brings the storm, sing about it

There was once a love in this Love is more than just a kiss Will we take you to that step Will we do more than just connect And will you, bring the thunder in my life And the fire in my eyes Cause then there, will be days of pleasure when Everything far will be so near

I have never felt thunder (thunder) And lighting (lightning) like this I have never been struck by (struck by) A wonder (a wonder) like this

There aren't days where I can, stop talking about you There aren't days I can't stop, saying your name And I'm looking for ways in never, to part from you, ha-ha And everything change and you, still stayed the same

I've never seen, and there's never been Anything, with the beauty of you

Yo, yo, yo Aiyo, shorty, I've never met someone so beautiful From your hair follicle to your finger nail cuticle Struck by the arrow of cupid, this love is deep rooted Like someone, took my heart sampled it and looped it To a song that's endless, passion brings the tempest I'll slay a thousand dragons to save my little princess A walking gift from God, you are my shining star The diamonds and gold that most men be mining for

Days that we shared our light treasures The treasure light fire is to mankind My hands will try to carry you to heaven But since I've seen you, you've brought heaven to my mind
