

Bound in Chains

Sacred Warrior

As the night starts it's rising, the streets start to fill
You're looking to get your next thrill
Music is loud, the lights are bright Woman is dressed to kill wearing their high heels and tights

Can't you see it's all so clear
Your living a lie
Wondering why, still searching inside
Days go by still you try, never understanding
That you're just one of many bound in chains

Pusher's pushing, the thief is stealing
The preacher's preaching but his life's full of darkness
The gangster's killing, the witch she's casting spells Astrologer's tell their lies and people but these feelings

Can't they see it's all so clear
They're living a lie
Wondering why, they're searching inside
Days go by still they try, never understanding
That they're just one of many bound in chains

If you choose to live life by these ways
No one else can take the blame
For the pain you're gonna feel
But the truth's within you, crying out
Now how much longer will you live in this darkness

Can't they see it's all so clear
They're living a lie
Wondering why, they're searching inside
Days go by still they try, never understanding
That they're just one of many bound
On you keep pushing on, will you ever realize
That they're just one of many bound in chains
