Sometimes the edge serves as more than a friend than you though t it would be

And the pages you write in your journal each night are your only release

And the mask you put on it's like words in a song but there's m ore to be seen

And the failures you see don't seem failures to me here at all

Oh I'm begging you, no
There's more life left to go
Oh I'm begging you, please
'Cause I, I don't want you to leave

Alone as you walk through a crowd and it's awkward like nobody sees

And you can't help but wonder would anyone come after you if yo u leave

So a pain grows inside and that fear comes alive like you'll ne ver be free

But there's no pain you feel that I know love can't heal here a t all

Oh I'm begging you, no
Oh I'm begging you, please
'Cause I, I don't want you to leave me
To leave me here on my own

Oh there's nothing to run from, no
There's nothing but fear inside you
Oh I just hope I can find you
And tell you that I know you'll smile again

More life left to go
Oh I'm begging you, please
'Cause I don't want you to leave
