

No Heart

Sally Oldfield

It's four in the morning and the tears are blinding me,
Bartender have yourself just one more drink on me,
I still hear the words you said as you walked out the door,
It's such a beautiful night but you're never coming back no more,
I feel the warm wind blow but there's
No heart, no love, no soul anywhere I go,
I can feel you in the night.

You're still here with me in the night,
You're still holding me tight,
I still hear the words you said as you walked into the night,
I can't keep from crying as I call out your name,
Again and again, I can't believe that so much love
Could turn to so much pain.

Now I got no heart, no love, no soul!
I stumble across the wasteland,
No heart, no love, no soul!
You were the only man
Who gave me that loving so sweet and strong
Oh god! I just never known such a lonely night,
Like being a million miles from home.

It's such a cold rainy night and it's sweeping over me,
So many memories, they're never gonna let me be,
I walk the familiar streets where we used to wander
But there's just an empty space, a barren waste
Where my heart used to beat.
