

Today I Sing the Blues

Sam Cooke

Without a warning
the blues walked in this morning And circled round my lonely room I didn't know why I had that sad and lonely feeling 'till my baby called and said it's through Yesterday I sang a love song
but today I sing the blues

I know the explanation but that's no constellation No matter how your love you can lose and since I lost I rather walk around and worry
I guess I've walked the darkest avenue

Yesterday I sang a love song
but today I sing the blues
Now it strikes me kind of funny
how life can be this way
We were lovers last night honey
but not in love today
Now it strikes me kind of funny
how faith can be unfair
it seems that I'm the one to lose in every love affair
Yes it must be written for me
That I should be the one to always lose
Yesterday I sang a love song
but today I sing the blues

Now it strikes me kind of funny
how life can be this way
We were lovers last night honey
but not in love today
Now it strikes me kind of funny
how faith can be unfair
it seems that I'm the one
to lose in every love affair
Yes it must be written for me
That I should be the one to always lose
Yesterday I sang a love song
but today I sing the blues
