

Start Again

Sam Tsui

Baby it breaks my heart that you don't smile any more
I'm dying to help you heal but won't unlock your door
They say it takes time, but you don't have to spend it alone.

Stuck in a memory that you're desperate to rewind
Too busy with looking back that you won't make another try
Now your trust is gone but you won't find it again on your own.

So don't go telling me it's too late to start
You're still holding a broken heart
But if you let me in, maybe you could start again
And don't go telling me there's no second chance
You'll understand when you take my hand
And baby let me in, I promise we will start again

I'm trying to get to you, so I make these promises
I swear they're unbreakable, but you're still just hearing his
He won't let you go, till you decide that you want to be free

You're haunted by yesterdays and still sore from the fall
And all you need to whitewash these old walls
We'll paint something new, if you let yourself listen to me.

So don't go telling me it's too late to start
You're still holding a broken heart
But if you let me in, maybe you could start again
And don't go telling me there's no second chance
You'll understand when you take my hand
And baby let me in, I promise we will start again

Don't give up yet
I won't let you close the curtain too soon
We can reset
If you take the leap and let me show you
Just gotta make the choice.

We love, we lose
And you think the best defense is distance
Tune the world out
Put it all on mute so you can't listen
But there's a way out of here
Just follow my voice
So don't go telling me it's too late to start
You're still holding a broken heart
But if you let me in...

So don't go telling me it's too late to start
You're still holding a broken heart
But if you let me in, maybe you could start again
And don't go telling me there's no second chance
You'll understand when you take my hand
And baby let me in, I promise we will start again

So don't go telling me it's too late to start
You're still holding a broken heart
But if you let me in, maybe you could start again