Running

Sarah Brightman

I was sad and I was silent In shadow of my soul Ever seeking the horizon For promises untold.

I dream of silent oceans And I sing of waters blue With the crossing of angels Brought forth to guide me through

To a distant shore so welcoming where I was free to roam In a land of ancient mystery That I could call my own

R: This is me and you And we are running To change the world Where hope is shining through Gaia's green and blue And we are running To save the world That we're about to lose

We'll be running Watch it coming Green is shining through Love is rising Worlds colliding Green is shining through

R:

Can you hear the distant beating Of passion born of old Reaching out to far horizons Of prophecy untold

I will wander through the desert I will seek you in my hand In the silence of shadows In palaces of sand

Then a voice called from the wilderness Whose spirit held the key To a world and soul united Forever strong and free
