

The Second Element II

Sarah Brightman

Burning fire,
A light in the dark,
Shining day and night for me.
Flowing water,
The source of our life,
Covering the world in blue.
Gentle air blowing,
Caressing my face,
Carry me into dreams of love.

The endless symphony

Wasn't it you who was filling my dreams?
The second element

Everywhere you are rife

Wasn't it you who was filling the streams?
The second element

With the power of life

Creeks are winding,
Just seeking their way,
Hardly tryin' to reach the sea.
Raindrops falling,
From skies to the earth,
Bringing life to you and me.
Lakes of silence,
A magical sound,
Keeping secrets in the ground.

A perfect harmony

Wasn't it you who was breaking the light?
The second element

And the rainbows arise

Oh, wasn't it you who was standing a fight?
The second element

From the earth to the skies

Wasn't it you, who was filling my dreams?
Wasn't it you, who was filling the streams?
Wasn't it you, who was breaking the light?

Wasn't it you?