

After The Blue

Sarah Fimm

The sky she asks for rain, and clouds they start to blend to one.

And words they seem to move the sun.

So often we are buried by the truth.

We sit here far removed. Wonder what will be