

Out of the Shadows

Sarah McLachlan

Crouching down inside a deep ravine
Those angry cries pass quickly by, he can't be seen
So many ways spent hiding in so many undone plans
Forgetting what it's like to fight when no one understands

Close call there in the shadows
There's a fear in the dark, there's no one out there

All those memories, pain and anger, flood back one by one
They must be just around the bend, they always come
At night as I lay sleeping they come to me in herds
Their lies remain, the dreams the same, it's only fleeting words

No one calls there in the shadows
There's no end to the dark, there's no one out there, no one but me
The hours pass so slowly, the life's slipping out of me
No way's the right way, is there a way out for me?
My life's slipping out

Rising up, the night is done, and now the bright light's come
Held back in my pitied world where every thing's undone
A cold wind blows right through me, I'm made a hollow shell
There's nothing left, just ash remains, enrich the soil, no soul, no soul

Close call there in the shadows
There's an end to the dark
'Cause there's someone out there, someone like me
The hours pass so slowly, the life's slipping out of me
No way's the right way, is there a way out for me?

The hours pass so slowly, the life's slipping out of me
Is there a way out for me?
The hours pass so slowly, the life's slipping out of me
Is there a way out for me?
There must be a way out for me
