To Your Brethren In the Dark

Forgotten days, forgotten thoughts in the hour of chaos pass the torch to your brethren in the dark forever torn, forever gone through the mirror, of despair pass the torch to your brethren in the dark

Tomorrows dream, tomorrows gleam its the burden in sorrow pass the torch to your brethren in the dark

October sky, October leafs and the silence, of nightfall pass the torch to your brethren in the dark

These stories, distant and untold These stories, of a world long gone gone

To your brethren in the dark

Nocturnal light, nocturnal cold on the mountain, now star it pass the torch to your brethren in the dark

Eternal flight, Eternal void with the spirit of chaos pass the torch to your brethren in the dark

These stories, distant, and untold these stories, of a world long gone

Satyricon