

The Last Song

SayWeCanFly

What's new is new
But that's almost impossible to understand
When all I've known for quite some time
Is how to hold onto you

What's done is done, that's what they say
But what happens when it won't go away
Like a raincloud
Hovering over a sunny day

Right now I am jealous of the moon
So care free, and so content
I wish I could shine as bright as you
No matter what was in my head

This is my last time wondering
If this connection was meant to be
Or meant to fall apart
Like the stitching on a broken heart
This is my first time losing a part of me
But I've come to terms with things, you see
This is the last song I'm ever gonna write for you

Nothing gold can stay, they say
When its too good to be true
But I disagree wholeheartedly
'Cause I could have kept you

But I chose to walk a different path
It lead me to a loss
But I'm going to man up
And get my god-damned point across!

This is my last time wondering
If this connection was meant to be
Or meant to fall apart
Like the stitching on a broken heart
This is my first time losing a part of me
But I've come to terms with things, you see
This is the last song I'm ever gonna write for you