Manorexic

Scarling.

He's utterly sarcastic- aesthetically confused He tells me I'm bombastic I want to be his muse An ordinary person who peeked into his void Would only wake up bitter and deeply paranoid He's unenthusiastic. Emotionally abused He's thinks that it's fantastic- I'd walk ten miles in his shoe s As I watch him disappearing. I know that it's not right I love him completely - At least for tonight Do do do.... There's a lack of understanding a mutual malaise He thinks I'm reprimanding with my uncertain gaze Though -I can't conceal my feelings ...Like he can't purge his

Pain Cause once he sees a mirror... logic goes down the drain

He's unenthusiastic. Emotionally abused He's thinks that it's fantastic I'd walk ten miles in his shoes As I watch him disappearing. I know that it's not right I love him completely - At least for tonight

There's a roughness to our romance- A sadness to his step And though he won't admit it... I know he's often wept Perhaps it's just frustration, at stars he'll never reach Reflecting his self image.... Bleeding poetry in the sheets

He's unenthusiastic. Emotionally abused If I wrap him up in plastic, I'll save the part he'll never use I watch him disappearing. I try to hold on tight Can't love him completely - At least not tonight
