

Please Stand Up

School Boy Humor

A song to bring back memories
Of who we were back then
A box of notes and letters
From a locked and loaded pen

A message sent through airways
To bring you back to me
So tighten up your headphones
And let my voice give you the lead

Please tell me (Please tell me)
She may be (Be listening)
To this song that screams,
This song I scream

And if I call your name,
will you please stand up?
Just drop everything,
run straight to the front
Run right out the door;
take a left to the spot where we used to watch the bright lights shine
Over West Little Rock

Baby, will you please stand up?
And I'll be waiting here where we grew up
Just gather all the notes and the rings
and the pretty things
you're the one who got,
the one who got away

Words to help remember what we had and what we lost
Time is telling secrets
They're telling me the cost

Of ignoring such perfection,
I do what I do best
Like running from commitment,
And making such a mess

Please tell me (Please tell me)
She may be (Be listening)
To this song that screams,
This song I scream

And if I call your name,
will you please stand up?
Just drop everything,
Run right out the door;
we used to watch the bright lights shine

Baby, will you please stand up?

you're the one who got,
the one who got away

I hope you hear this
and it takes away your breath
Like the Polaroid we took,
I wrote that I'd be yours forever
Well I'm still yours

I wrote a thousand words
that brought about your love
I loosened my grip on us,
but I'm still holding your hand,
I'm holding on

I hope you hear this
Like the Polaroid we took,
I wrote that I'd be yours forever
Well I'm still yours, whoa

I wrote a thousand words
that brought about your love
I loosened my grip on us,
but I'm still holding your hand,
I'm holding on
I'm holding on
But I'm still yours

And if I call your name,
will you please stand up?
Just drop everything,
Do you will remember the way to our spot where
we used to watch the bright lights shine
Over West Little Rock

Baby, will you please stand up?
you're the one who got,
the one who got away
