Only Myself To Blame

Scott Walker

I've walked way past midnight
I've driven for days
I've tried to forget in so many ways

I've held other arms But they don't feel the same And I've only myself to blame

From city to city
I still see your face
It follows me 'round, all over the place

I shouldn't look back But I do just the same And I've only myself to blame

I knew it was love But when you are young You think love will come again and again

There's no greater fool In the fool's hall of fame And I've only myself to blame

I knew it was love But when you are young You think love will come again and again

There is no greater fool In the fool's hall of fame And I've only myself, only myself Only myself to blame