

Clocks and Timepieces

Search The City

We've all got a past and these ghosts are holding us back I listened to your message over and over again, thought about how I let you don't, thought about who I am I felt hopeless, I got caught up in this life
I'm such a mess,
I wonder how I look through your eyes
We've all got a past

Baby, take your time
stop and see for once in your life
the things you're missing out on

I look out on the city lights, wonder where you are tonight
So much that I want to say
Will you ever let me?
And if I pour my heart out, do you want the truth?
Yeah, I pour my heart out
I at least owe that to you

Baby, take your time
stop and see for once in your life
the things you're missing out on
Like me, like me and the sunshine
The summer's almost over,
we're running out of time

I at least owe that to you
Open up your eyes,
I'm right in front of you There's so much I have to say,
will you ever let me?
It's too cold for June
How come only hear from you when you're liquored up?
I've heard all about the others and this side of you that you discovered this summer

Baby, take your time
stop and see for once in your life
the things you're missing out on
Like me, like me and the sunshine
The summer's almost over,
we're running out of time