

Water

Second Person

I stand on the stones and I stare at the waves
And all of my anger runs red in the sea
I have let go of all of my rage
It's sailing, it's sailing away from me
I will placidly go amid the noise and the haste
And the voices and days all subside into peace
I have let go of all of my rage
It's sailing, it's sailing away from me
And you come around to restore my soul
For you make me down to lie
And I'll carry you
If you carry me, too
All my life

I am acceptance and I am forgiveness
I will believe this was nobody's fault
Spiders and shadows as long as I live
But I have nothing to fear, I have nowhere to fall
I have no one to hate, I have no one to blame
And I have no more shame or deceit or dismay
And I have let go of all of my pain
It's sailing, it's sailing, it's sailing away

And you come around to restore my soul
'Cause you make me down to lie
And I'll carry you
If you carry me, too
All my life

Through
I stand on the stones and I stare at the waves
And all of my anger runs red in the sea
I have let go of all of my rage
It's sailing, it's sailing away from me
It's sailing, it's sailing away from me
It's sailing, it's sailing, it's sailing away from me
It's sailing, it's sailing, it's sailing
Away from me
