

I feel it rushing over me but the moment I touch ground I can't define
I was captivated, devastated and haunted by the storms of disbelief

I want to get closer now, but your arms are dying
I want to get near you now, but you are drifting far away
So let me be your light dragging you through darkest times
You swore that you'd be coming back

I felt it rushing over me shivers down my spine when you keep crashing down
It is not overrated or calculated,
It is watching from the corners deep in your mind want to get closer now, but your arms are dying

I want to get near you now, but you are drifting far away
So let me be your light dragging you through darkest times
You swore that you'd be coming back

Now that we love, now that we are fighting for Now that we have came together