

Walk Alone

September

You'll always walk alone

I never said I'm tired of talking
I've simply had it not talking to you
It's never been my time, so I can't wait another minute I'm sick of standing in line while you're telling the world the truth, truth

You'll always walk alone

So please come home
'Cause everybody else is praying for themselves
When everything is said you're just another stranger now

I think you're beautiful playing the saviour
That's why I'm saving you from the world
It's gonna eat you alive, save the thinking about it for later
Why should the one who's around be the loneliest kind of girl, oh

You'll always walk alone

So please come home
'Cause everybody else is praying for themselves
When everything is said you're just another stranger
Walk alone
So please come home
'Cause everybody else is praying for themselves
When everything is said you're just another stranger now

Now I'll put my sanity on the table
I'm breaking all of your golden rules
Because I know I'm gonna lose it
If I end up losing you

You'll always walk alone

So please come home
'Cause everybody else is praying for themselves
When everything is said you're just another stranger now
