

God Bites His Tongue

Sevendust

Face down, feeding into you, find the weakness
Holding it down till we kill it
Every once in awhile, I get caught in the silver lining

No one ever lives it
(What's the meaning? What's the meaning?)
Somewhere, we all lost the spirit
(Lost it all)

So save us, just so we know
That the bitter taste, we need it
And we forgive ourselves and leave it all

I want it now
Choke it all down till we're speechless
Keep holding your breath till I need it
Every once in a while we all want that silver lining

No one ever lives it
(What's the meaning? What's the meaning?)
Somehow I know I'm not alone

So save us, just so we know
That the bitter taste, we need it
And we forgive ourselves and leave it all
In the space that's between right and wrong
The better days deceived us
And we let ourselves believe it all
And god just bites his tongue
(God just bites his tongue)

We chase the seconds away
Like the wind and the rain
(I always loved the storm)
We pray to see better days
(Please God be willing)

So save us, just so we know
That the bitter taste, we need it
And we forgive ourselves and leave it all
Beneath it all, between the right and wrong
The better days deceived us
And we let ourselves believe it all
And god just bites his tongue
