This Song: For The True And Passionate Lovers Of Music

Shai Hulud

I have this song to sing Certain words must be screamed Rather than be sung or spoken I am alive and vigorous... As they toil without love Fight without purpose, And live without passion ... I am alive and vigorous. In this song: is where I belong Within these moments There are no outsiders Within the body of the song Time stands still. One is all And all is beautiful The beautiful moment of song and passion We will all sing We will all dance If a human's nature is to war This song: Is a battleground And this voice A weapon One thousand voices Or trumpet call To arms Passion's promise True love's reward A pure expression In truth and sincerity Passion's promise True love's reward, is this song What will become of this song ... Pray not a fallen banner Or screamed words to the deaf For life is weary without song, or sound of harps This is a song for the impassioned This is strength for the herds on sleeves A shining sentiment where voices soar And melody wells tears in the eyes We will all sing the same song This song Together
