

The Way That I Feel

Shannon Noll

I'm sitting on a train bound for nowhere just trying to survive
, thinking 'bout the love I hold inside me that's keeping me alive.
Wishing I could change it all, praying but I can't go back in time. No-one no matter what I say or what I do will ever change your mind.

But I'm looking forward now I'm trying to find my way. Looking back I see only yesterday. Time is moving at least I know it's real and I'm singing about the way that I feel.

Laying on a deck chair just trying to catch some rays, thinking 'bout this thing that they call love to me it's just a maze. I see it in the trees the breeze or do you see it in a newborn's eyes?

Or is it when you've found the one for you there will never be no goodbyes.

Well Yeah

But I'm looking forward now I'm trying to find my way. Looking back I see only yesterday. Time is moving at least I know it's real and I'm singing about the way that I feel.

And I know that you love me and one thing I know was true in the end I just couldn't see what was meant for me. I listen to the we whisper of the wind I recognise the sound. I'm looking down deep down deep inside my heart and I see I'm glory bound.

Oh Yeah

But I'm looking forward now I'm trying to find my way. Looking back I see only yesterday. Time is moving at least I know it's real and I'm singing about the way that I feel.

Oh yeah the way that I feel. Oh yeah the way that I feel. Oh yeah the way that I feel.

OK I'm singing about the way that I feel.
