Much More Than That

Sharon Van Etten

Please don't take me lightly. I mean every word. Whichever way you'd like to place them.

One day I'll be a better writer. I'll make every face That I'll never perfectly phrase. Ooh... that I'll never perfectly phrase.

You reached for my hand slowly. I didn't pull away. We did not have to be lips to face.

My toe hit your toe lightly. You toe met my heel right back And I don't think I need much more than that. Ooh... and I don't think I need much more than that.

You look at me so slyly But only when I'm smiling. Every other time your head looks down.

I sigh and then I frown. I write this moment down, 'Cause I cannot paint pictures with my tongue. Ooh... no I cannot paint pictures with my tongue.
