

One Life

Shawn Hook

Why's the world so divided?
Everybody's fighting 'bout the way we think
Someone else should live
When our kids are the leaders
They'll do it like the teachers
That don't hear what we're saying
But they see the moves we make

We take separate roads
We make different homes but
We're all tied to this one life
Love has no race
Every heart beats the same and
We're all tied to this one life

From the slum to a palace
Put your finger on atlas
Everywhere the air is still the same
From the god's of those who follow
Everybody's hollow
If you turn the other way
Put yourself in their place
Something's gotta break

We take separate roads
We make different homes but
We're all tied to this one life
Love has no race
Every heart beats the same and
We're all tied to this one life
We're all tied to this one life

Oh, oh, oh, oh, oh

This one life
This one life

We take separate roads
We make different homes but
We're all tied to this one life
Love has no race
Every heart beats the same and
We're all tied to this one life

We're all tied to this one life
We're all tied to this one life
